

In this essay I am going to be writing in support of killing cane toads. I have read a number of articles that have convinced me that these creeps are nuisances. I also will be writing in support of these animals, however my main defence is killing these monsters.

From my research into research -ing the vile cane toad news articles it is evident that these dangerous animals are demolishing wild life species of Australia for them to be discontinued they must be eliminated. Even though this sounds a bit horrible and they should be treated the same as other it is straightforward that these slimy disgusting things must die!

Cane toads are "... serious pests," (Nick Squires 2007) which are smothered with poisonous warts and viscous glands and skin. They were transported into Australia in 1935 to keep down the population of these horrible cane beetles and protect the cane sugar plantations. Unfortunately, this plan back fired because the cane toad colony grew rapidly.

Why do they need to be eradicated? because they are pests and kill innocent animals of the wild! Furthermore, they have poisons, so they should be sent to death.

It was quite hard to find the support for the cane toads. "Simply whacking a few with golf clubs doesn't work" (Nick Squires). However it could be said that the more humane way to kill them is you should put them in a "freezer" and the job is done" (Mercer, 2006)

It is very clear that these pests haven't got many friends but a lot of enemies and they should be killed for killing others.

Nick Squires (2007) 'cane toad golf out of bounds', The Telegraph (08/06/2007)

Phil Mercer (2006) 'Australians hunt down toad', BBC News Darwin, (18/06/2006)